NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Five Hundred Dollars for Watchman. There was a large attendance of voters at the special meeting of the village corporation to see about an appropriation for watchman's service. The meeting was called to order at 7:30 by town clerk, L. Curtis, and under the first article A. S. Kimball was chosen moderator.

Proceeding to the second article, Chas. P. Barnes moved the appropriation of $500 for watchman service, voted by a land vote, yes 74, no 30 by town clerk, L. Curtis, and under the first article A. S. Kimball was chosen moderator.

The meeting then adjourned after a 10 minutes session. Very Attractive Display of Wild Flowers. It might be well for those who like to see a beauty in Nature to go down on the Norway Branch railroad track at about 6 o'clock, p. m., Saturday or Sunday and see the meadow covered with the beautiful rose-colored blossoms of the swamp rhododendron. The best effect may be obtained by coming up to the track looking towards the late afternoon sun, which lights up the petals of the flowers, and makes a very brilliant and beautiful effect.

Norway grammar school, grade 9, Harriet Abbott, teacher. Number pupils registered 23; average attendance, 19. Names of pupils who were present at every session of the term ending June 2:

Geneva Barker, Rosamond Dunham,
Myrtle Haskell, Hattie Merrill,
Grace Thibodeau, Alton E. Whitehead.

The ninth grade made an interesting display of work done in water color. The sketches were made from spring flowers. Vivian Akers of the High school had charge of the color work and the excellent results were due to his careful instructions.

High School.
The class, 16 in number, will be presented with the diplomas at the high school rooms Friday afternoon.

The Baccalaureate Sermon.
The Baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of the Norway High School was preached by Rev. C. A. Brooks, at the Methodist church, last Sabbath morning.

The auditorium was beautifully decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and class colors of orange and white crepe paper.

Mr. Brooks said he felt at home with the students and young people, for he had been a teacher for several years and supervisor of schools.

The subject of his sermon was taken from Mark 10:23: "But it shall be hard for them to whom it is prepared of my father." Mr. Brooks said the text suggested two things: first, that there was a proper place before every one to fill; second, the needed preparation to fill the place.

He said there were many people misplaced in this world, which caused much trouble, and that water would find its level. He contrasted between occupying a position in life and filling a place. He thought it better to wait in a humble place, than to occupy a high position with failure. He emphasized Christian character as the only safe foundation for a young man and woman, and that the demand for such was never stronger than today.

There were places waiting for every well qualified person to fill. He congratulated the class for the good work they had done, and for living in the 20th Century, showing some of the advantages in school life of today, above a quarter of a century ago.

He said in concluding, that if a man filled his proper place as he should under a loving God, following the example of the Master in this life, there would be no question about receiving the place suggested by the text.

The music was fine for the occasion, and a crowded house to enjoy the service.

School Notes.
The school committee have re-elected teachers for the village schools as follows:

Mercy E. Millett, Upper primary.
Elizabeth O. Lasselle, Lower primary.
Gertrude O. Gardner, Middle primary.
Harrington E. Cragin, Third grade.

Long M. Hayes, Fourth grade.
Clara A. Eastman, Fifth grade.
Edna I. Brown, Sixth grade.
Grace L. Griffith, Seventh grade.
Annie S. Emery, Eighth grade.
Harriet Abbott, Ninth grade.

After election Miss Eastman resigned making a vacancy in fifth grade.

The high school teachers, Chas. B. Thompson, Percival H. Hathaway, Grace B. Bicknell were also re-elected.

The morning service will be a sermon appropriate to the occasion, with singing by the children.

W. F. Burbank and J. W. Rodick, Lewiston, have been fishing in this vicinity for a few days past. They have caught all kinds of fish. Thursday, they were at Marshall Pond pickerel fishing.

"The Missouri Girl," a comedy in four acts, was presented at the Opera House, Wednesday evening, to a good-sized audience. The play itself contains much of real merit, and the different parts were well rendered. Of course Zeke and Daisy were all right. The company carries considerable special scenery and effects, the setting for the third act being particularly good.

Buck Bound Over.

The hearing in the case of Amos A. Buck, charged with assault with intent to kill his wife, which had been continued from the preceding Saturday was held Thursday, and was in session at the time the ADVERTISER went to press.

County Attorney Charles P. Barnes was for the state and Hon. James S. Wright appeared for the respondent.

The story of the assault is as follows: Amos A. Buck, his wife and a 6-year-old son have been living some months at the house of Orange Small, about two miles east of Paris hill. Their family life had been marked with more or less disturbance.

On Tuesday, May 23, Mrs. Buck took the son and went to the home of Mrs. Mary C. Buck, mother of Amos Buck, and also the younger Mrs. Buck's grandmother. Buck called to see her several times, urging her to go back.

On Thursday afternoon, invigorated and fortified by hard effort, he again called and for some time urged her to go home with him. He followed her about the place and just outside the stable door, sat down. Her answer to his urging was that she would never go back, angered him, and he picked up an axe just inside the door and struck at her, the poll hitting and making a slight cut on the top of the head.

She grasped the axe and screamed. Solomon G. Buck, brother of the respondent, ran out and grasped Amos, whereupon Mrs. Buck dropped the axe and ran into the house.

Buck left immediately after the affair, returning later in the evening and was arrested the next day. No proof of his using threats was produced, and he claims to have no recollection of striking her.

He was bound over to the October term of the Supreme Judicial Court in the sum of $500 and has not yet secured the bail.

George Courtchew was before the court Monday, having been arrested by Deputy Sheriff W. L. Farrar, on a charge of intoxication and disturbance of the peace in Oxford village, June 1. He was fined $5 and costs, the whole aggregating $19.19.

The well driving apparatus of Maxwell & Dodge which arrived, Monday, and was unloaded from the cars, Tuesday morning, attracted much attention, many people supposing it to be for the Norway & Western road.

Ernest M. Noyes of Middleboro, Mass., formerly of Norway, is spending several weeks with his sister, Mrs. T. L. Heath. T. L. Heath and E. M. Noyes returned, Friday, from a fishing trip in Newry and vicinity of Polar Tavern. They brought about 60 large trout.

A merry party of Norway and Greenwood people passed a pleasant Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Sawyer at Camp White in Greenwood. Among the party were: Oscar Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Records, Frank Packard and wife, Albanus Tubbs and wife, Al Thomas and wife, Geo. Richardson, wife and children, Mrs. Carrie Caldwell, Mrs. Horace Dinmore and son, Albert. Farnum and wife, Clara Schinner and Mrs. Hattie Packard.

It is expected that work will begin on the Norway & Western railroad within a couple weeks. The first work will be building a bridge across the stream. It will be near the point of land on the northerly side coming across near the cornshop. It will be about 400 feet in length. The change in location is in order to reduce the curve, and it is understood that the course through the grove avoids the necessity for removing any large trees.

Wm. G. Rand states that the grading crew will begin work about ten days before the completion of bridge, and the laying of ties and rails will follow about the same time and continue steadily to its end.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of W. S. Pierce, June 3. The following program was given by the Wildwood club:

Universalist State Convention.

Held With the New Society at South Paris in their New and Handsome Church Home, this Week.

The Maine Universalist Convention held their annual meeting at South Paris, this week, the formal opening of the convention being on Tuesday morning at 10:30, but practically opening on Monday night, with a service in the church which was very well attended.

Through the day visitors had been arriving and about 60 had come by night and the prospect appeared to be that the guests would at least equal the number planned for and expected, that would be nearly 200, who would be entertained in the villages of South Paris and Norway.

On Monday evening the church was filled. Rev. J. H. Little presided and the exercises began with music by the quartet, L. S. Sessions, Hattie E. Leach, Mrs. Nellie Andrews and G. A. Briggs, Mrs. H. E. Wilson being the accompanist.

Rev. L. W. Coons of Dover read the third chapter of second Corinthians, and prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Gould of Dexter.

The opening sermon was by Rev. C. A. Hayden of Augusta, from the 13th verse of the chapter as read, and the topic, "Looking Heavenward." It was a spiritual address and calculated to stir the soul.

A man is known, not so much by where he is as by what he is doing. Mohammedanism faced toward Mecca, Daniel faced toward Jerusalem. The early Christian cathedrals faced the East. The facing of the soul is a vital part of religion. The soul must face the right way.

In these days it is the danger that we lose sight of ideals. We need to get a new outlook, need to have clearer vision of the Almighty. Without it the soul shrivels and fades. Such a vision gives us a Paradise here. Trust your best moods, take counsel of your hopes, open your soul heavenward, and let God's light in.

The church should bear loving testimony to the sacred vision of eternal love of God. Of such vision, the people of the churches of our faith with the principle of Fatherhood of God! With such a vision we shall triumph over foes, without and within.

Tuesday morning, marked the formal opening of the convention. Prayer was offered by Rev. I. M. Atwood, D. D., of Boston, superintendent of the general convention.

Rev. J. H. Little, pastor of the local church, Sunday school and Y. P. C. O. U., gave a cordial welcome to almost a youthful church in the state, which had been organized almost exactly 3 years. He then rehearsed the history of the church.

A response was made by the president, Hon. C. S. Hichborn of Augusta, who began with a humorous reference to Oxford bears in general, becoming serious, and hoped the convention would be a grand success to the church.

The president appointed the executive committee, consisting of himself, Rev. H. S. Whitman of Brunswick, M. N. Drew and M. B. Coolidge of Portland, and secretary P. E. Barton as the committee on credentials.

In a few minutes the committee reported 80 delegates representing 35 churches. The report of the executive committee was accepted as printed, the same showing a good advance condition.

The treasurer's report was accepted showing a cash balance of $437.35, and receipts since making the report of $155.35, making an available balance of $592.70. The trustees report $10,415.07 invested as in $1,371.55 from last year.

Mrs. Nancy Hill of Auburn reported for the Woman's Missionary Society. But 7 of the 10 local societies had reported. They had received a bequest of $500, the interest only to be used, and $156.77 other receipts.

Lillian Tower of Woodford for the Y. P. C. U., sent a written report that was read.

Of the 24 unions held with reported with a slight loss of membership. P. L. Tower and Pres. O. H. Perry being absent, no reports at this time were given from the Sunday school or Westbrook seminary.

For the committee on fellowship, Rev. W. J. Taylor of Lewiston reported they had received seven ministers from other states and dismissed five members.

Rev. Lily Shafer had been ordained and Ellen M. S. Tanberg ordained as a lay preacher.

A nominating committee was appointed consisting of Charles Forbes, Portland, Charles Dunn, Auburn, and Rev. L. W. Coons of Pittsfield.

It was voted to choose officers for the next year and the report of the committee was accepted. Officers:

Treasurer—M. N. Drew, Portland.
V. Pres.—Rev. H. S. Whitman, Brunswick.
Everett L. Philson, Auburn.
Sec.—Rev. E. E. Barton, Bethel.

Treas.—M. B. Coolidge, Portland.
Mr. Drew, who is the speaker of the Maine house of Representatives was introduced and made a brief address. The meeting then adjourned for dinner.

More than two hundred people were present from out of town and the attendance was one of the best for the opening of any of the conventions.

The place for the next meeting is to be Biddeford, the preacher of the occasional sermon, Rev. Fannie E. Austin, of Machias; alternate Rev. J. M. Atwood.

Tuesday afternoon, the occasional sermon was delivered by Rev. J. F. Albion, D. D., of Concord, New Hampshire, Portland. His theme was "The First Commandment, and the text Mark 12:30; the first and great commandment being love. The sermon was a most able and intensely spiritual address, presenting as the right way of religion the commandment of love to God with the heart, soul, mind and strength. The communion was then administered by Rev. J. H. Little of the local church, and Rev. S. G. Davis of Norway.

In the evening the church was completely filled, pews, available chairs and to a large degree, standing room. After the musical portion, scripture reading by Rev. F. E. Barton, and prayer by Rev. Q. H. Shinn, Rev. E. F. Fether gave an address upon the history of the denomination in Maine. He prefaced his remarks by telling his experience as a preacher for a summer at Lovell.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidney troubles. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived."

The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Jack Harkaway's Schooldays

By BRACEBRIDGE HEMYNG

Maple went to his locker and brought the money to Hunston, who put it in his pocket with a subdued grin. That very night Maple began to talk about his loss.

Jack was almost the last to hear of it, and the information came from Harvey.

"What do you think?" exclaimed the latter. "Maple's lost some money."

"I'm glad of it, the dirty little cur!" answered Jack.

"But he says you have bagged it."

"Does he say that?"

"Well, he doesn't exactly say so in so many words, but he says he saw you at his locker today."

"That's odd. I did go to his desk this afternoon to borrow a ruler. It was the only desk I saw unlocked, and as he wasn't there, I took it. Where is he?"

"Up at the other end of the room, talking to Hunston senior and Collinson."

"I'll give him something for talking about me."

The boys were preparing their lessons for the next day; some were talking, some writing, others reading. Mr. Mole, the master in charge, was out of the room.

"Maple," said Jack, "what do you mean by saying I took your money?"

"I only said I thought you might have done it out—out of a lark," stammered Maple, turning pale.

Jack caught him a stinging box on the ear. Maple began to cry and got behind Collinson, who said:

"Don't hit the fellow. He was complaining to me as head of the school, and I won't have him touched."

"Why does he go and tell lies about me?" yelled Jack, his eyes flashing indignantly.

"How do I know they are lies?"

"Oh, Collinson! You can't believe I would steal anything!"

"I did not say so, but the charge must be inquired into. Here's Mr. Mole. I will speak to him."

The senior master approached Collinson, saying: "Who is that crying?"

"He was crying in the yard when I heard a dismal wail."

"Harkaway Bedington struck Maple."

"I'm afraid, Harkaway, you have a fondness for bullying, and you know Mr. Crawcour does not like it," said Mr. Mole.

"He deserved it, sir."

"No matter; if he is impudent you should complain to me."

"The fact is, sir, Maple has lost two pounds ten out of his desk," exclaimed Collinson, "and he says that he saw Harkaway there, and just after he had taken something out he missed the money."

"It seems very curious, sir," remarked a boy named Jackson, "but yesterday Harkaway was so hard up that he borrowed a shilling from me."

"Yes," said Hunston Junior, "I saw him do that, and today he was in the pastry cook's with Harvey when I was there. He paid his tick, and he and Harvey ate nearly everything in the shop."

"What have you to say, Harkaway?" exclaimed Mr. Mole.

Jack was silent. He could have cleared himself in a moment, but he had said he would not yesterday.

"Have those boys spoken the truth?" continued Mr. Mole, in a loud and severe voice.

Every one looked at Jack, whose face grew deadly pale.

"Well!" cried Mr. Mole impatiently. "Can't you speak?"

"Yes, sir," replied Jack. "It is all true."

He spoke with difficulty and seemed much embarrassed, which those near him put down as signs of guilt.

"You had no money yesterday?"

"None at all, sir, except the bob—the shilling Jackson lent me."

"And yet you paid a bill and treated Harvey to tarts this afternoon at a shop in Little Bridge," continued Mr. Mole.

"Yes, sir."

"Have you had any money sent you or seen any friend who has given you some?"

"I can't answer that question, sir," replied Jack.

"Why not?"

"I have my reasons."

A murmur of astonishment ran round the little circle of boys.

"Foolish fellow," said Mr. Mole, with more kindness than he usually displayed. "Don't you see that the only way to clear your character is to account for the possession of the money you are proved to have had? How much had you this afternoon?"

"Two pounds ten, sir."

"The very amount Maple has lost," cried Mr. Mole.

"All in gold it was," put in Maple.

"Silence!" exclaimed the senior master. "Don't you see the force of what I say, Harkaway?"

"Yes, sir."

"And yet you won't speak?"

"I cannot."

"Do you deny stealing this money of Maple's?"

"Certainly, I do. I never knew he had it in his desk. I am not a thief, sir."

"It is very odd," said Mr. Mole in perplexity.

"Harkaway did not take the money, sir," said a voice. It was Harvey.

"What do you know about it?" asked the senior master.

"He could clear himself in a moment if he liked."

"How?"

Harvey was about to speak when Jack said: "Harvey, remember what you promised. If I don't say anything,

I don't want you to."

Harvey was silent.

"Come, come. If you can do your friend a service, do not hesitate," Mr. Mole said.

But Harvey remained obstinately silent.

Mr. Mole said very seriously: "Look here, Harkaway, this is no trifling matter. I must repeat it to Mr. Crawcour. You are accused of stealing money. I can't mince the matter, and I really must say, in all candor, that the evidence, as far as I have heard it, points in your direction. Does it not, now, I ask you? You still refuse to speak?"

"I cannot say anything more than that I am innocent, and perhaps you will know all some day," answered Jack in a tone of resignation.

Mr. Mole looked at him crossly and left the room.

A burst of conversation instantly arose, and the matter was loudly and generally discussed.

"Collinson," exclaimed Jack.

"Don't talk to me," replied the captain of the school.

"Why not? We used to be such friends."

"Used to be."

"Are we not now?"

"I don't want to say anything unpleasant, Mr. Harkaway Bedington," replied Collinson, "therefore if you have any regard for your own feelings you won't speak to me."

"Tell him what he is," said Hunston senior.

"What am I?" asked Jack.

"A dirty thief!"

In an instant Jack struck out at him and sent him rolling over a form half stunned.

The crowd shrunk back.

"I'm not a thief, whatever you may think, and I don't mean to stand any nonsense or humbug."

Whatever disposition Collinson and the other members of the sixth may have had to resent his sudden assault upon Harvey Hunston, they did not attempt to interfere with him, and Jack retired down the room to where Harvey was sitting. A small hiss arose, which grew into a general chorus, and "Thief, thief" was heard on all sides. Jack sat down by the side of his only friend, and his eyes burned, and his lips were parched and dry.

"Here's a go," said Harvey.

"Never mind," answered Jack; "they will find it out some day. I'll write to Emily and ask her permission to tell."

"You are an ass for putting up with this, when one word would put it right."

"That one word will never be spoken by me unless I have dear little Emily's permission."

"You're a fellow anyhow. I know I couldn't bear this like you. You'll get flogged perhaps."

Jack was about to reply when Mr. Mole entered, telling him that Mr. Crawcour wanted him in his study. He rose and slowly followed the senior master to the principal's room.

CHAPTER XXIV.

MR. CRAWCOUR looked up as Jack entered and exclaimed:

"Bedington, what is this Mr. Mole tells me? Somebody has extracted a large sum from Maple's desk. I wish my boys' friends would not send them so much at a time. It is only a temptation to them and to others."

"I am told that the evidence points to you as the culprit. There will be nothing for it but to have you tried by my new system of the jury, and that you may have nothing to complain of the twelve shall be all chosen from your schoolfellows by yourself, and Collinson shall be the judge. Is that fair?"

"It seems so, sir."

"And you will not think it unjust if I inflict upon you any punishment, the judge sentences you to?"

"No, sir. I can't clear myself, so I suppose I must put up with it. Still, I should be glad if you did not believe me guilty. Circumstances are against me. I may be mischievous and troublesome, but I am not so bad as to be a thief. Besides, why should I? I can always get money from home by writing for it."

"I know your friends are rich. But I must do my duty for the sake of example."

"Sleep over the matter, and perhaps tomorrow morning you may have changed your mind and be inclined to speak. If you can clear yourself as you say, it is sheer insanity to remain silent. You can go now."

"Jack went away and spent the evening in preparing his lessons for the morning."

The next day he, at Mr. Crawcour's request, selected twelve of the boys from the sixth form to try him. They went into the evidence and, as a matter of course, he was found guilty. Collinson passed sentence upon him, saying that a boy who could commit so mean an action as to steal another's pocket money deserved to be birched.

Accordingly, Jack had to kneel down before a chair in the middle of the room, in the presence of the whole school, and Mr. Mole and Mr. Stonor held him, while Mr. Crawcour gave him twenty strokes with a birch.

He got up tingling with the pain and took his place next to Harvey as usual.

Silence reigned in the school, and the ordinary work of the day was proceeded with.

Mr. Crawcour spoke to Collinson and some of the leading boys, saying that as Jack had been dealt with he hoped they would not make his life miserable and chaff him about his trial. But Jack was decidedly cut.

The League meeting May 30 was unexceptionally good. The recitation by Ada Frost, dialogue by Oniel, Amy, Irvin and Verner Mills, and the flag drill by all the children were fine. The next meeting June 13 will be a "bird evening." The entertainment committee for the evening are Mrs. Pottle, Mrs. Knight, Mrs. Stephens and Mrs. Perry.

Universalist State Convention.

Rev. I. M. Atwood of Boston, the general superintendent of Universalist churches of the United States, gave the second address, telling of the meaning of Universalism and giving an account of its spread through the country, and the coming of the multitude of believers toward the light of the Universalist faith. The exercises closed with music and benediction by Dr. Atwood.

Wednesday morning, seventy-five delegates were present at the 5 o'clock prayer meeting, led by Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes, of Gray. The meeting was of great interest and was one of the most successful of any of the yearly meetings. About two hundred gathered at the 8 o'clock devotional service, which was led by Rev. H. H. Hoyt, of Hiram, and this was followed by an address by Dr. Shinn, who is a missionary in the south, upon his work and the denomination's forward movement there.

The business meeting was presided over by Rev. H. H. Whitman, of Brunswick, vice-president. The roll of church was called, and a hundred or more delegates and alternates answered to their names.

The report of the committee on reports was accepted. It contained 11 articles, and they were adopted in order, some of them provoking much discussion, especially in regard to the state organ, the Gospel Banner, which was voted to be issued as a monthly, and the churches subscribed to 250 copies besides many individual subscriptions.

The committee on nomination made their final report. Besides the names given above: George Trethoven, of Portland, was chosen trustee for three years. They recommended, and the convention accepted as delegates to the general convention:

Clerical—Rev. J. F. Albion, Portland; Rev. J. M. Atwood, Portland; Rev. Gertrude Earle, Dover; Rev. E. F. Tenber, Bangor; Rev. W. Taylor, Lewiston; Rev. H. H. Hoyt, Hiram; Rev. L. W. Coons, Pittsfield.

Lay—W. T. Cobb, Rockland, M. N. Drew and wife, Portland; C. S. Hichborn, Augusta; C. H. Philson, Lewiston; A. J. Merrill, Bangor; E. Vaso and wife, Madison; S. B. Cummings, Norway; E. H. Sargent and wife, Mrs. Augusta M. Hunt, Hiram; T. Cox and wife, Portland.

A large number of delegates went on the car to Norway at 1 o'clock for the purpose of enjoying a sail on Pennessewassee Lake, but the steamer was unable to run on account of logs, so they returned.

The Woman's Missionary meeting in the afternoon was led by Mrs. Mary Beals of Bangor, president of the State society, and was addressed by several ladies who are engaged in the work. It was a most inspiring session.

A memorial service to the late Rev. W. W. Hooper was held late in the afternoon. Addresses appreciative of the life and work of Mr. Hooper were made by his former associates Rev. F. Barton of Bethel and Rev. W. H. Gould of Dexter.

In the evening was by Rev. A. Gertrude Earle of Dover on "The Permanence of Religion." It was an able and inspiring address.

Rev. C. G. Miller of Woodford advocated as a method of raising money for church support the pledge or card system in preference to socials, suppers, etc. This brought out a vigorous discussion, the largest churches advocating from experience the pledge system, the smaller churches finding the other manner of raising money necessary.

The conference ends today, Thursday. This morning at 5 o'clock was a well attended service led by Rev. L. R. Shafer of Mattawamkeag.

A praise service at eight and a brief business session, followed by addresses Rev. Dr. H. S. Whitman of Brunswick and by J. E. Beardon of Oakland.

A sermon this afternoon by Rev. H. E. Townsend of Westbrook ends one of the best meetings of the state convention ever held.

Oxford County Churches.

District Superintendent Rev. J. H. Little of South Paris reports: At North Newry a neat, convenient, pretty chapel was dedicated Aug. 31. The total cost was $1500, and all but $200 is paid. Here will be preaching the three summer months.

Bryan's Pond and West Paris have worked together the past winter under the direction of the State Superintendent, Rev. E. E. Barton. Services have been held once a month, and the awakened interest at Bryan's Pond has resulted in the renovation of the interior of the church, and improved heating facilities at West Paris. The Sunday school has increased to 55. The parish here have raised $1500 for a church building which will probably be erected this summer.

Paris Hill dropped out of the circuit including South Paris in March, but has kept the Sunday school active. It is expected that Rev. W. M. Kimmel of Massachusetts will preach here Sunday.

West Sumner will unite with Paris for summer preaching if a plan of that kind can be made practicable, if not, West Sumner will endeavor to secure a preacher for the summer months. The two parishes would do valuable work united in a circuit, and settle a young man graduate of the Theological school this year.

South Paris is making steady progress. The ladies have paid $500 on the building debt, $100 toward current expenses, and have paid for the lighting. A change has been made to a morning service which is an improvement in many ways. The Sunday school and Y. P. C. U. are flourishing and a Junior Union recently organized is prospering well.

Norway is fortunate to supplement the two yearly fairs of faithful service of Rev. Caroline E. Angell, with the pastorate of the able, efficient and loyal worker and minister, Rev. S. G. Davis, and the work is going on there with old-time zeal and faith, a mark of honor to the former past as well as of faith in the new. This, the oldest Universalist parish in the state, moves on from victory to victory.

At Rumford Falls extensive improvements have been made in the church property, including an outlay of $2000. All departments of church work are in prospering condition.

Canton reports repairs on their church building, increase in the membership of ladies' circle, organization of a Junior Union of twenty members, prosperity in the Sunday school and pastor engaged for another year.

Mrs. William Hayes of Auburn is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alton C. Wheeler of South Paris.

N. M. Small & Son of West Paris will give their customers a beautiful water set free. See their ad elsewhere.

Millet-Beap.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Millet on Cottage street, Wednesday evening, took place the marriage of their daughter, Augusta E., and Donald H., son of J. H. Bean of South Paris.

It was a very quiet home wedding only the immediate relatives of the parties being present. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. B. S. Rideout.

The parlors were attractive with wild-flowers and ferns. The ring service was used. After the ceremony and the serving of refreshments Mr. and Mrs. Bean went to their new home in South Paris which had been attractively fitted up for their occupancy.

Mrs. Bean is well known in Norway, prominent in church work, and has been employed at housework and also at the millinery trade. She is a very fine young lady.

Mr. Bean is an industrious, steady and estimable young man highly respected, and has many friends who are pouring congratulations upon him. He is employed at the factory of the Paris Mfg. Co.

Presents of furniture, china, silverware and linen were received by the happy couple.

The village corporation assessors have appointed George F. Hathaway night police. He goes on duty in about two weeks.

Mrs. A. M. Dean, who has been at her daughter's, Mrs. H. J. Bates, in a few weeks, returned Wednesday to her home in Yarmouthville.

Wm. H. Twombly packed up and shipped the household goods of H. Denison Cole to Morrisville, Vt., this week. Mrs. Cole goes, Friday.

An Open Letter from Steamer Pennessewassee.

On board, June 6, '05.
No doubt people not familiar with the condition of things up the lake, have heard something said about low water. We wish to call your attention to a few facts in regard to the matter. Unless we have rain, and lots of it, the steamer cannot possibly run with safety longer than this month.

We like to sing the praises of our beautiful lake, but it seems as though there is no lake. Its waters are controlled by a mighty corporation, sometimes called "souless." They can draw the water down to the last drop, and who can say stop? It is theirs to do with as they please. Under these conditions it seems mockery to speak of the lake in any terms—except with disgust.

With this state of affairs and others we might mention, if you wish to see the lake at its best, this year people better attend to the matter at hand. The boat is not running on a time card as yet, but give us a little notice of your wishes and we will accommodate you, and try and make your trip pleasant. We hoped to see this the banner year for lake business, in pleasure to you, and incidentally a few shakels for the steamers.

Don't come to our wharf two months from now and want to kick the steamer people overboard because there is no water. We are not to blame. We are sorry.

J. W. CROMMETT,
Str. Pennessewassee.

Steam Launch Henrietta hoisted her colors and went into commission, Saturday, June 3, for the season of 1905. She is bright, fresh and clean and will make a specialty of private parties. This launch is a well-known favorite and has no particular comment. It is an ideal trip around the lake in this launch. Make up your parties 8 or more and try it. We feel sure we can please you.

Str. Pennessewassee will run Sunday leaving at 10 a. m., 2 and 5 p. m. Saturday, June 10, will run a sailing trip to head of lake. Should any parties wish to spend Saturday night up the lake will run a special boat at 5 p. m. Please notify the boat of your wishes in this matter.

Allen-Pratt.

A quiet home wedding took place in the Dean neighborhood, the home of the bride, when William Gertrude Allen and William Henry Pratt of the village were united in marriage by Rev. D. F. Nelson at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on June 1. A few invited friends and relatives were present. Mrs. A. R. Bucknam and Mrs. Hezikiah Farrar were present from here.

The bride was becomingly dressed in brown silk trimmed with white lace applique and wore apple blossoms. The couple stood in one corner of the room which was decorated with the same fragrant blossoms and ferns.

Her traveling dress was of changeable brown voile trimmed with lace over pink with hat and jacket to match.

Ice cream and cake was served after the wedding. Mr. Pratt took his new wife to his cozy little home on Pioneer street which he has recently remodeled and newly furnished.

Mrs. Pratt has many friends and acquaintances in this vicinity, and the worthy couple have many kind wishes for a happy married life.

WEST STONEHAM.
A Pleasant Summer Home.
We recently had the pleasure of calling on our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Adams, at their beautiful home situated near the shore of Lake Kezar. They have a most commodious cottage of 8 rooms. Being two-story, it gives some lovely views from the upper windows, of the waters of the lake, surrounded by the forests and hills; also several cottages can be seen from the broad piazza.
A beautiful lawn and fine grove of birch trees slope down to the water, where a pier and several nice boats are found.
Mr. Adams has been quite a successful hunter. We noticed two large deer heads mounted, and a rack made of deer feet, which held guns of all kinds, also a beautiful coon skin rug, placed before the open fireplace, which makes the ample sitting room an interesting place, indeed.
Herbert Adams has had radishes from his garden several times.
Charlie Adams of North Stoneham has gone to Bridgton to work.
Mabel Brooks, our school teacher, recently visited her home in Milton.
Mr. and Mrs. Loring McKee of East Stoneham were at their son's a few days, last week.
Mrs. Emma Warren has finished her work for H. B. McKee and returned to her home at East Stoneham.
Mr. and Mrs. Poole and friend, Mrs. Conway, all of Portland, stopped a few days last week at Wm. Gammon's. They made the trip in his automobile.
The entertainment given at the Crystal Valley Rebekeah Lodge, was a success both socially and financially, the proceeds being about $13.

Please Your Hair

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? Better please it by giving it a good hair-food—Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair stops coming out, becomes soft and smooth, and all the deep, rich color of youth comes back to gray hair.

"I was troubled greatly with dandruff until I used Ayer's Hair Vigor. It completely cured the dandruff and also stopped my hair from falling out. It serves me very nicely also in arranging my hair in any style I wish."

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufacturers of Sarsaparilla, Pills, Cherry Pectoral.
